

Kanooka Community Childcare

Centre Philosophy

We are a community that embraces its diversity with a strong focus on Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islanders culture.

We seek to offer rich and varied learning opportunities to all children through social and cultural awareness and a strong sense of personal self-worth.

Building positive relationships is integral to Kanooka Child Care Centre.

We believe that families are the most important people and the best source of information in our children's lives and should feel comfortable to openly communicate their abilities and needs.

Educators, families and support agencies work together to achieve the best possible outcomes for all children. Parents and families are encouraged to be involved in all or any areas of the centre.

The curriculum decision making process is a model where educators formulate the program based on their knowledge of the children, through ongoing data gathering and a holistic approach to children's learning.

We encourage children to develop tools for learning such as, resilience, collaboration, confidence, creativity, persistence, curiosity and imagination, further enhancing ongoing learning beyond early childhood

Educators are valued and respected for their individual strengths and abilities they bring to Kanooka.

Ongoing professional development, and opportunities to liaise with other early childhood professionals, allows educators to continue to create the best environment for children to grow and develop.

Educators, Committee and Families contributed to the development and review of the centre philosophy, reflecting our belief in open communication and inclusiveness
